This gentleman, one of the most talented and distinguished of our American tragedians, is now in the city. He has a host of friends and admirers here, and we hear a general wish expressed to see him again on the boards of the Adelphi; but we are not advised as to whether Manager GREENE can secure us this gratification without doing injustice to his other engagements.

The Gazette moralizes over the terrible mortality in New Orleans, and thinks that such lessons should induce us to -"Learn to labor and to wait."

The misfortune with the New Orleans victims, it seems to us, was, that they hadn't time to wait. For our own part, when yellow fever or cholern is about, we shall much prefer waiting to encountering the disease in propria persona. - No murmur shall escape us if we have to wait a hundred years!

The New York Mirror says a plan has been discovered of warming houses by burning gas that will speedily do away with the use of wood and coal for all heating and culinary purposes. Arrangements have been made for warming the Union office on this plan. The flame from a single gas burner can be so diffused as to produce any required amount of heat, at a cost of fifteen cents per

THE LAST FISH STORY.

We don't know who wrote the following melancholy and heart-rending tale, but the author is certainly a man of rare faculties. It is said to have been taken from the log-book of a vessel some time since arrived in port, and is vouched for as being true in every particular; the reader had therefore

In course of the voyage, that dreadful disease, ship fever, broke out among the crew. One of the sailors, among the first victims, was accompanied by his son, a lad of fourteen years, who was strongly attached to his father, and remained with him day and night, and never could be persuaded to leave his sick father for a moment.

A large shark was seen every day following the vessel, evidently for the purpose of devouring any one who should die and be committed to the deep After lingering a few days, the sailor died. A was the custome at sea, he was sewed up in a sheet, and for the purpose of sinking him, an old grindstone and a carpenter's axe were put in with The very impressive service of the Episcopal Church was then read, and the body committed to the The poor boy, who had watched the proceedings clo ely, plunged in after his father, when the enormous shark swallowed them both. The second day after the dreadful scene, as the shark continued t follow the vessel, (for there were others sick on the ship,) one of the sailors proposed as they had a a shark hook on board, to make an effort to take They fastened the hook to a large rope and baited it with a pice of pork, threw it into the sea, and the shark instantly swallowed it. Having thus hooked him, by means of a windlass they hoisted him on board. After he was dead, they prepared to open him, when one of the sailors stooping down for that purpose suddenly paused, and after listening a few moments, declared most solemnly he heard a low, guttering sound, which appeared to proceed from the shark. The sailors, after enjoying a hearty laugh at his expense, proceeded to listen themselves, when they were compelled to admit they heard a similar sound. They then proceeded to open the shark, when the mystery was explained. It appears the sailor was not dead, but in a trance, and his son, on making this discovery, had, by means of his knife, rapped open the sheet. Having thus liberated his father, they both went to work and righted up the old grindstone-the boy was turning, the father was holding on to the old ship carpenter's axe, for the purpose of cutting their way out of their Jonah-like prison, which occasioned the noise heard by the sailor. As it was the hottest season of the year, and very little air stirring where they were at work, they were both sweating tre-

wealthy and highly respectable house of Messrs. Voris & Bro., of this city, and presents ONE OF THE MOST WON-DERFUL CURES IN THE ANNALS of medical history. Mr. H. G. Farre:1—Dear Sir. Actuated by a sense of grate-fulness, I submit the following as an instance of the utility of vo r great medicine. My child, three years old, was sud yo'r great medicine. My Chita, three years old, was sud-denly attacked with a terrible disease, which in less than six hours prostrated it to total helplessness. The limbs be-came so riged that not a joint could be beut; the flesh turned black and cold and entirely deprived of feeling; the eves fixed, partially closed and altogether blind, following the was deafness to all sounds; the spine became contracted and so curved that when lying on its back the head and beels only touched. Indeed, the child presented every appearance of being dead. Immediately on the attack, the family physician was called in, and for three weeks he labored to restore it to feeling, but all in vain, although it was blistered a dozen times and various rubefacient Limments applied.
